Penetrate Six Miles Through
New Gap in Siegfried
Line

ABLAZE WITH ACTION

Estimate 1,500,000 Allied Troops Hurdled Into
The Fray

Supreme Headquarters, A. E. F., Paris, Nov. 17.—(INS)—American Ninth Army troops, spearheading the gigantic general offensive of six allied armies against the German eastwall, were reported in front dispatches to have penetrated six miles inside the Reich through a new gap smashed into the Siegfried line.

The whole western front blazed with action across an expanse of some 400 miles as the six armies, four of them comprised of seasoned United States troops, tore into the eastwall in a mounting offensive which may develop into the decisive battle to defeat the Nazi armies in eastern Europe.

Unofficial estimates placed the total of Allied troops hurled into the fray at 1,500,000, outnumbering the reported 500,000 German defenders three to one.

The American Ninth Army tore new holes in the Siegfried line above Aachen as British forces to the north closed in on the Reich frontier from eastern Holland and American and French armies in western France smashed forward through the outer defenses on the Nazi homeland.

Considerable progress was made in the general offensive all along the line, with the Nazis in some sectors, particularly at the lower end of the front in France carrying out hurried demolitions.

The enemy fell back rapidly in the face of the British Second Army advance through the Netherlands to make a stand at the Maas River. The Ninth Army, operating in the

2,000 Garments Shown At Torresdale-Andalusia

TORRESDALE, Nov. 17.—Nearly 2,000 articles of clothing were displayed at the annual exhibit of Torresdale-Andalusia Branch, Needlework Guild of America here Wednesday evening.

The program, held in the parish house of All Saints P. E. Church, was announced by the president, Miss Lydia Paxson, who extended a welcome. She called upon the Rev. Percy Brown, rector of All Saints church, who offered prayer; and the secretary, Miss Helen O'Nielly, and the treasurer, Mrs. Edwin M. Lathrop, who gave their reports.

Major Edith Wenlock, of South Langhorne, representing the Salvation Army, told of work of that organization, and presented its different social agencies and activities in Philadelphia and vicinity.

Another speaker was Miss Stryker, retired nation president of the Junior Needlework Guild.

Vocal solos were given by Dr. John Rafferty, and piano solos by Miss Audrey Lee Lathrop.

NOW A PRISONER

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McCole, of Lansford, formerly of Bristol, received word this week that their son, PFC Roy McCole, who was missing in action, is a prisoner of war. PFC McCole had been reported missing in action in August, and the good news that he is alive, although a prisoner, was received this week in a letter written by the soldier.

POLISH AND NAZI TROOPS FIGHT FIERCELY AT MONTE CASTELLACCIO

Rome—Fierce fighting raged today on the rugged slopes of Monte Castellaccio where Polish troops sought to oust stubborn German defenders on the west flank of the British Eighth Army.

General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson disclosed that the Poles had smashed against "strong enemy defenses," on Mount Castellaccio after they had seized the town of Converselle, northwest of Castrocaro.

The Germans were pressed in other sectors by both the American Fifth Army and the British Eighth, and, in a desperate move to stave off the Allied advances in the Adriatic coastal sector, the enemy flooded an area south of Ravenna by demolishing the banks of the Flumini River.

With the Poles blasting out heavily defended and concealed positions of the enemy in Mount Castellaccio, the Eighth Army inched northward toward the vital city of Faenza, along the Bologna-Rimini communications line. Castellaccio is a key feature dominating German defenses in a sector west of Forli.

British troops of the Eighth Army, in the meantime, consolidated newly won ground in the vicinity of Forli, north and west of the city.

Indian forces teamed with the British on the right flank of the American Fifth Army to overrun the important road center of Modigliana, and farther west, American units under Lieut. Gen. Mark Wayne Clark advanced more than a mile through the Serchio Valley.

Writing from one of the islands in the Philippines, Capt. Victor A. Sharrett, of Doylestown, who has been in the service since July, 1941, and who for some time was stationed on the Gilbert Islands, comments upon the extreme cruelty of the Japanese soldiers, especially in the treatment of the native women and their children.

In a recent communication to his wife, Mrs. Mildred Sharrett, that commanding officer of a Quartermaster depot, said it is a pitiful sight to see the natives on the Philippines.

"It makes your heart sick to see the women carrying their babies around with bad wounds in their heads and other parts of their bodies. The Japs drove them from their homes, stole their food and finally drove them back into the hills. Natives refusing to comply with the orders of the Japs were decapitated.

"Living on a starvation diet during the three years the Japs had control over the Philippines, the natives are merely skin and bone.

"The Filipinos, fighting as guerrillas, are killing every Jap they find, and they certainly are doing a fine job. Every native hates the Japs, and they truly are a fighting people."

In the communication Capt. Sharrett said:

Boake Carter Dies Suddenly in Hospital

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Boake Carter, writer and news commentator, died last night shortly after he was admitted to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.

Hospital attendants declined to reveal the cause of death.

He was 46 years old.

Carter was a commentator with millions of friends and enemies. His ability to view domestic and foreign events from a neutral corner came as a direct result of experience. He had travelled widely and his adventures took him to the far corners of the world.

He was born in the British Consulate at South Baku, Russia, of Irish-English parents, educated in England, travelled in almost every country on the globe, spent several years in newspaper work in the United States before he transferred his activities to the radio. In two nation-wide polls he was voted the outstanding news commentator.

Carter served for a time in France as correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He worked for two years in the oil fields of Mexico.

POSTPONE SESSION

The meeting of Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women scheduled for November 21st, has been postponed to November 28th. The meeting will be held in the Travel Club home at eight o'clock. This states the president, Mrs. David Sheerer, Jr., is a very important meeting, as reports of the convention of Republican women being held in Harrisburg this week will be presented, and other matters of interest discussed.

Newportville Cubs To Collect Newspapers

NEWPORTVILLE, Nov. 17.—Newportville cubs, Pack 44, will collect newspapers again tomorrow throughout the community under the supervision of W. H. Gillette, Cub Leader.

Three and one-half loads, weighing 1½ tons were collected last Saturday by the Pack.

"Collections were somewhat retarded," said Mr. Gillette, "through lack of properly preparing the papers. Residents are asked to keep the newspapers flat and tied with string in bundles if possible."

BENSALEM QUOTA IN BONDS SET AT $354,375

Committee Desires Several More Volunteers To Solicit Sales

PUPILS WILL ASSIST

Three hundred and fifty-four thousand, three hundred and seventy-five dollars is the quota allotted Bensalem Township for the 6th War Loan Drive by the government. Mrs. E. Paul Patton, township chairman of the war finance committee, has been informed.

The committee, recently revised due to the resignation of two district chairmen, is anxious to add several new volunteer solicitors to its ranks. Those wishing to be of great service to their country by joining the army of war bond salesmen, may contact the W. F. C. chairman in their district: Mrs. Ella Weber, Andalusia, Corn. 0419; Mrs. George Vandegrift, Cornwells and Eddington Corn. 0220; Mrs. Walter H. Gillette, Bridgewater and Newportville, Bristol 7687; Mrs. Joseph Groner, Upper Bensalem, Hulmeville 6677. The district of Trevoise will be thoroughly canvassed by pupils of the Trevoise school under supervision of Howard Hilgendorff, principal. Echo Beach section, covered by Mrs. William Duerr and her workers. No new solicitors are needed at present for these territories.

Section quotas will be announced later with a complete list of official canvassers, together with the goal of the three schools and scout units participating in the drive.

Elementary Teachers Meet At Co. Seat Tomorrow

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 17.—The Bucks County Elementary Teachers' Institute will be held at the high school tomorrow, the program for the day beginning at nine a. m. with a demonstration of visual aids given by Assistant Superintendent Paul Gruber and Mrs. Mary Winkle.

The morning session will be devoted to the discussion of technical subjects including lunch programs, curriculum programs and reading demonstrations. Mrs. Mary J. Fleetham, home economics representative, and the elementary supervisor, Dr. Genevieve Bowen, will take part in the program.

Luncheon for those attending will be served in the school cafeteria in two groups, one at 11:45 a. m. and the other at 12:30 p. m.

Addresses during the afternoon session are to be made by Charles Philhower, Westfield, N. J., who will speak on the Lenapi Indian, and by Ezra Whitman, War Finance committee, on stamp and bond drives in the schools.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

One Man Who Stood Firm

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—OFTEN in a political campaign there are some outstanding party figures who find themselves in positions of acute embarrassment. Either they have so strongly opposed the policies of the man at the head of the ticket that support of him involves a mortifying swallowing of their own words, or they distrust him so intensely that they feel his defeat would be good for the country as well as gratifying to themselves.

THERE was an unusual number of these deeply pained gentlemen in the last campaign—and nearly all of them on the Democratic side. The most conspicuous one among the Republicans, of course, was the late Wendell Willkie. Eventually, how he would have solved his problem no one is entitled to state. There was also Senator Ball, of Minnesota, who went the whole distance by bolting his party ticket. But most of them were Democrats of pronounced personal and political hostility to Mr. Roosevelt.

SOME of them trimmed, tried to carry water on both shoulders and measurably succeeded. Others rose lightly above their principles and pretended to like it. One or two, like Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, announced that they would vote the party ticket, thus preserving their regularity, but declined to go farther than that. Others who wanted to keep silent yielded to pressure and, with their personal political future in mind, came out with supporting statements. The most surprising was that from Senator Carter Glass, who is too old and sick to have a political future. It was difficult to believe that Senator Glass, who from the start had abhorred the whole New Deal philosophy and had strongly opposed a third term, should come out for a fourth term.

THE Senator's son, Mr. Powell Glass, promptly said he had reason to disbelieve the statement and declared his father's health was such as to preclude anyone from talking

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TELL ROTARIANS "WHAT I'D LIKE TO SEE IN POST-WAR WORLD," TWO STUDENTS PRESENT THEIR IDEAS ON SUBJECT

The subject, "What I Would Like To See In The Post-War World" was very ably discussed at the weekly meeting of the Bristol Rotary Club at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon when two Bristol High School seniors, Robert Clickenger and Jack Stetson, gave Rotarians their ideas on the subject.

Mr. Clickenger's speech follows: Mr. President, members of the Rotary Club, and guests. The honor granted me by one of my instructors to speak to you this afternoon cannot be expressed in words.

Being a senior in Bristol High I have naturally been thinking about what I would do after my graduation day has passed, provided this terrible world war is over by that time.

I would like to take a few minutes of your time and express my views on the subject of "What I would like to see in the post war world."

First I will break this down into three distinct groups—No. 1, commercial; No. 2, Transportation, and No. 3, social.

First, "Commercial." I would like to see a high tariff. This would not only allow our manufacturers to produce on a par with foreign neighbors, but would allow us the privilege of selling our products to our foreign neighbors due to the fact that after this war millions of dollars must be spent to rebuild all that has been destructed in the past years.

The problem has come up as to whether the Republican party has to be in office to have a high tariff. The answer is "no." Congress has the privilege of putting on a high tariff. Either the Republican or the Democratic party can be in office; it does not make any difference.

Again, if our factories are kept busy we will be able to maintain a standard of wages which will help to keep up our standard of living which at this time leads all countries of the universe.

Second, "Transportation." This is

International Relations
Program

PLAN FOR EVENTS

LANGHORNE, Nov. 17.—The speaker appearing before Sorosis yesterday afternoon in the library here was Richard Wood, radio commentator, whose home is in Moorestown, N. J. The subject of Mr. Wood was "Where do we go from Dumbarton Oaks?" He was presented to the club women by Mrs. Elmer Pickett, chairman of International relations committee.

Mrs. Pickett also announced numbers by the Sorosis chorus, these being "Hymn of Thanks" and "Where Heaven Is." The chorus was directed by Mrs. Ernest Gamble, with Mrs. Harvey Kromse as accompanist.

The business meeting was in charge of Mrs. Lester Ransom, who announced the cancer clinic forum to be conducted on November 27th at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. Mrs. Phillip G. Lewis announced a session of the "Fix It Up and Make It Do" group, to be held November 20th at her home, the hour being eight p. m.

The women were informed that Junior Sorosis members have invited the seniors to a program at the community house on December 12th.

CADETS SELLING FLAGS

The American Legion Cadets of Robert W. Bracken Post are conducting a "Fly the Flag" campaign. All Americans should "fly the flag" every day. For those who do not have a flag, the Cadets are in a position to furnish flags of any size desired, at a very reasonable cost. They can furnish poles for lawn, curb, building or window. Worn out flags can be replaced with a new flag. Anyone desiring to avail themselves of this service may contact any cadet or Terence Taffe at the Post home, or telephone Bristol 456. Make every day "Flag Day."

ENGAGED TO WED

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brown, McKinley street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Matilda N. Brown, to Sgt. Richard S. Van Aken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Aken, Sr., McKinley street. Sgt. Van Aken is now stationed in the Far East. No date has been set for the wedding.

Community Players Plan For "Gay Nineties" Show

TULLYTOWN, Nov. 17.—A meeting of Tullytown Community Players was held Tuesday evening at the home of Elwood Carlen. The president, Richard Watson, presided, with reports being given by Mrs. Benjamin King, secretary, and Elwood Carlen, treasurer.

Plans were made for a "Gay Nineties Show" to be held in January. It was also decided to hold a Christmas party, December 12th, at Green Light Restaurant. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Maurice Cavin, Mrs. Richard Watson, Mrs. William Barwis, Miss Doris Nelson, Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Sr., Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Benjamin King, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Richard Watson, William Swangler, Elwood Carlen, and Carman DiCicco.

NEED FOR GARMENTS IS BECOMING GREATER

Rev. Maurice Levit, 5th St.
Mission, Phila., Speaks
To Needlework Guild

TOTAL EXHIBITED 2237

That in spite of increased employment of the past few years there are countless families in need of help was impressed vividly upon members of Bristol Branch, Needlework Guild of America, yesterday afternoon. This message was brought to the women by the Rev. Maurice Levit, superintendent of Fifth Street Mission and Community Center, Philadelphia, as he told of his experiences of the past 35 years in mission and settlement work. The annual exhibit was held in the community house.

The Rev. Mr. Levit informed that although there appears to be a demand for workers in many plants, lay-offs are becoming more common. "And," he added, "all the people are not in defense work, and all don't live in Bristol." He then told of the hundreds of old folks with whom workers at the mission come in contact daily—men and women too old or unable to work, who endeavor to exist on their old age allotments. "At the most they receive $36 or $37 a month. And when they pay probably $15 a month for their rooms, then expend some for gas and electricity, that leaves very little for food. They simply can't buy clothing, and that is where the work of the mission fits in, and we are so glad when we have clothing from the Needlework Guilds and other sources to give them."

The speaker, who mentioned that "the babies are coming in bunches like bananas," right now, told how so many of the young women in the poorer section of Philadelphia where he is located, find the allotments from their service-men husbands' pay doesn't afford much, if any for layettes. "And we are sending one layette out after another," he commented as he cited individual cases, and the gratitude for the garments.

War Mothers of Bristol Have Anniversary Banquet

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 17.—American War Mothers of Bristol Chapter participated in the first anniversary banquet at the Lido Venice, here, last evening. Covers were arranged for 43.

The blessing was asked by the chaplain, Mrs. Paul White; and Mrs. Robert Moss, president, extended congratulations to the members on their year of work, and expressed hope for successful years to come.

Mrs. John Wiesner was chairman of the banquet committee; and Mrs. David Hutchinson, 1st vice president, presented a bouquet of chrysanthemums to Mrs. Moss on behalf of the organization. The tables were also decorated with chrysanthemums. Organ music was provided during dinner; and a floor show followed.

TO REFORM PATROLS

All the Boy Scouts of Troop 48 are asked to be at their meeting place at Bristol Terrace on November 20th. Reforming of patrol groups and appointment of new leaders will be in order.

Pfc. Donald E. Worrell, who is stationed at Doshon Hospital, Butler, and brother, Lt. Floyd G. Worrell, were entertained over the week-end by Mr. and Mrs. C. Melvin Johnson, Harrison street, Lt. Worrell is en route to a base at Lincoln Army Air Field, Lincoln, Neb.

DI PIETRA IS SAFE; MISSING MAN MAKES A FORCED LANDING

Bristol Terrace Resident

CITATION TO SQUAD

Tells of Homes Burned, and Stock Missing in Wake of Germans

That Staff Sgt. Ben DiPietra, 20, of 146 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace, is safe and well, is the message contained in letters received this week by his parents after he had been reported missing in action.

Staff Sgt. DiPietra, who has informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John DiPietra, and his sister, Miss Viola DiPietra, that he and others of his crew made a forced landing in Yugoslavia, states that he is in perfect shape and feels fit as a fiddle.

"The young engineer of a B-24 Liberator, had been reported missing early this month, he having been overseas since September 17th. The telegram stated that he was missing over Italy as of October 14th. He and members of the crew, who have received the Presidential citation, made good on their forced landing, and in his letters the localite informs that his failure to write sooner is due to no fault of his own. He adds: "I can't tell you where I've been but maybe in a few weeks I'll be able to give you all the details." In a later letter he was able to inform his family: "We were forced down in Yugoslavia and spent quite some time there before we were brought back here. That's all I can say."

As censorship was lifted to a greater degree, the young man was able in subsequent letters to give more information. He then says: "It all started on a raid way up in Germany. It was really up there. The Jemies got one of our engines just before 'Bombs Away.' After we turned away we lost our formation, the main reason being that we only had three and plenty of weight. It sure is a funny feeling coming back by yourself without any outside protection except your own guns. Well, we made it as far as Yugoslavia where we ran out of gas. There we made a forced landing. The people were very friendly and soon took us to a town where we waited to get out. Had a long wait as you can see. In the future just wait until you're sure until you start worrying. They say that nine out of ten missing return."

"We received our presidential citation, today. We weren't here when the squad got it, so we were a little late. . . . We are still waiting to go to the rest camp. . . ."

In his most recent missive Sgt. DiPietra enclosed the letter he had written while in Yugoslavia, but had not gotten opportunity to mail. In it, after telling of the forced landing, and of the quick arrival of a crowd of friendly people, he mentioned that "After four days" travelling we landed at this place. Sometimes we walked and sometimes we rode in a wagon. In coming here we passed many towns and villages where the Germans had been before. There wasn't much left. Homes burned down to the ground, livestock gone, and even the young girls. The family where we are staying now had one girl taken away.

"The people treat us very good. Last night there was a dance which we attended. Had a very good time. We have very good food. There is chicken at least five times a week (I'm the cook for the gang). They cost us less than ½ dollar apiece; also have turkeys and ducks. Our breakfast is four eggs apiece, anyway you want them. . . . I can't tell you how we are going to leave here, but maybe some day I will."

By the Rev. J. H. Queen
Pastor, Bethel A. M. E. Church

Eternal Father in heaven, bless us with eternal salvation. Endow us with the gift of fellowship. Savior of mankind, save our hearts from apathy and moral decay; save our spirits from faithlessness and bring us to a place of constant trust. Make salvation sure and redemption real despite the questionings of a doubting world. And as salvation comes to our lives may we shed its glories abroad. Wherever we come in contact with a seeking soul may the world see Jesus in us. Amen.

BRISTOL HIGH TEAM IS IDLE TOMORROW; TO PLAY THURSDAY

Bunnies Will Oppose Morrisville Eleven on Field Here

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Both Teams, Keen Rivals, Will Be Playing For League Honors

Bristol High football team will remain idle tomorrow afternoon. The Bunnies play their next game on Thanksgiving Day morning, meeting Morrisville High for the Lower Bucks County championship on the local field.

The only game in this vicinity will see the Pennsylvania School or the Deaf play Morrisville at Morrisville at two o'clock. Bristol beat P. S. D., 16-0, last Saturday, so fans can compare the Thanksgiving Day opponents.

Bensalem High will travel to George School to meet the team representing that institution. The game will begin at 2:15 o'clock.

person having any ability at all.

Third, "Social." I would like to see medical research continue as it has in the past and also during this war. Many new things have been discovered in the medical world in the past years, and I think medicine is still in its infancy. In a recent issue of a magazine I read an article entitled "Banks of Human Spare Parts." In these banks parts of the human body are kept. These include cartilages, parts of the eye, bones of the arms and legs and many other parts. These will be used for people who have been in terrible accidents. These parts are kept preserved for a long period of time. One doctor kept some parts of the body for over a year and were said to be in good condition and still good for use. If these banks are as great as claimed to be, I would very much like to see them used in the post war world for people who are in a critical condition.

Housing in the post war world will be another great development. I read in a recent article that homes will be put up in about twenty minutes. To me this seems rather fast work, but if it can be done I would like to see it. It may be, by the time I get ready to have a home, all I'll have to do is to look in a catalogue, find the serial number of the home I would like to buy, order it, and in a short time a truck will back up to a vacant lot and put up my house.

I would like to see towns have centers for recreation. To have these places of recreation would mean a great deal to the people. Large industries will probably foster a number of these projects. These will be places where the people can go and do what they wish. They may have bowling, pool, basketball, baseball, pingpong, swimming, and many other activities. That is just the trouble with today, people have few places to go. If recreation centers were built it would also stop a lot of juvenile delinquency because these centers will be well supervised.

The second speech, delivered by Jack Stetson, follows:

Mr. President, members of the Rotary Club, and guests, I have put a great deal of time and thought on this topic and the meaning that I took from the title was that I should give my ideas of what I would like to see in the post-war world, not particularly what I think there will be.

Conditions of the postwar world may be divided into three fundamental divisions: Social, Economic, and Philosophical. To go into detail about each of these divisions would take a great deal of time. I will briefly tell my dreams of what I would like to see in a Postwar World.

In the social world, I would like to see great strides in the fields of aviation, education, and home mechanics.

In the air, I dream of large and speedy transport that will carry mail, cargo and important people to every spot on this great globe of ours in record-breaking time and I dream of helicopters, or the like to deliver mail, etc., on short hops such as from Bristol to Burlington to save the ever-so-frequent round-about way now used; as in the example it would save the trip from Bristol to Trenton and then down to Burlington. The mail in this case travels a distance of approximately twenty-five miles to get to a goal less than two miles away.

I do not think as some do that there will be helicopters and trim looking planes in place of automobiles, although I do believe there will be more privately owned planes than ever before.

In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post I read an article about a man that owned his own little plane and in taking a trip from New York to Mississippi, under average weather conditions

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

If the grouse were, they still are... hunted Pike County last Saturday for grouse and came home empty-handed. Either the birds were flushing wild or the howling winds prevented us from hearing them get up. Saw just three birds all day and the closest one was at least 75 yards ahead of us.

We worked the ridges and valleys, the swamps and pines, and the hemlocks and oaks, all without success. Saw plenty of deer, as usual. Probably, when deer season arrives, the hunters will see plenty of grouse and very few deer.

Coon hunting... Joseph McVaine, Eddington, while hunting near woods took four raccoons in one night recently.

Joe, who has two of the best compounds in this section, reports that raccoons are fairly plentiful. The average weight of the four he took the other evening was 13 pounds.

Some of the raccoon hunting fraternity claim, however, that the Game Commission started the season at too early a date. These hunters claim the pelts are not prime and that some of the animals being treed and killed are not even half grown. One Hulmeville hunter told me that on a recent hunting trip his dogs treed three coons, the mother and two that were not even half grown.

The strippers are moving... according to J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., member of Bucks County's legal fraternity, and an ardent salt water angler, the catches of striped bass along the New Jersey coast have been increasing recently. On a recent trip Mr. Kilcoyne hooked into three nice ones while fishing the surf. He said several nice catches were made while he was fishing.

More on rabbit trapping... Last winter the Game Commission, through its field officers and the co-operation of Sportsmen's organizations and Boy Scout Troops, succeeded in live-trapping and removing 33,083 rabbits from areas where no hunting is permitted, such as city lots and parks, Victory garden plots, watersheds, institutional grounds, etc. The animals were released in open hunting territory where they provided the finest possible breeding stock.

Deputy Game Protectors, leaders of Scout groups and other youth groups and sportsmen were appointed as agents of the Game Commission to assist the Commission's depleted field staff with this work. A fine job was done last winter, even though rabbits had been reported scarce in some localities.

The Commission plans to continue its program on a much larger scale this winter, and it members of any organization are willing and able to act as game trapping agents, and if leaders of Boy Scout troops are interested in undertaking a program of this kind in order to build up the troop treasury (the Commission pays so much a head for each rabbit trapped) the county Game Protector will be glad to furnish all details.

You may know of Victory gardeners who experienced rabbit damage, or of parks and other protected areas where trapping should be done. If so, please give this information to your local Protector so that he may plan his campaign now to include every available section. The man to contact is County Game Protector Earl Carpenter, 41 Taylor Avenue, Doylestown.

According to latest information the Commission doesn't plan to buy any rabbits for stocking purposes... the only rabbits that will be released will be those that are trapped this winter. So here is an opportunity for local sportsmen to help overcome the very spotty hunting that is found in this end of the County.

Perhaps, when the war is won, and the boys come back from the fighting fronts, the Game Commission may see fit to spend some of the almost two million dollars it has to buy more pheasants and rabbits for the men who hunt the woods and fields.

and the normal amount of red tape, it took longer and was more expensive than either a car or a transport airplane.

I would like to see in the field of education perhaps the greatest change of any. I think there should be larger, more modernistic schools with better athletic fields and gymnasiums so that the boys and girls can develop themselves and become stronger and more healthy people of the future. I believe that there should be heat-regulated or air-cooled class rooms to help keep the pupils as wide awake as possible. I know that when I am in a class where the windows are closed and it gets hot and stuffy I can hardly keep awake and as a result receive no profit from the class.

I would not like to see again, as there was found to be by the draft this time, people that can neither read nor write even their own name.

As part of a boy's training I think a year of either army or navy life would be a good thing. I do not think there should be a minimum age but should take them as they leave school.

Someone would naturally bring forth the argument that after a year in the army if a fellow wanted to go to college he would be older than the rest of his classmates but I do not think they would because everyone would have to spend a year in the service and they would all be nearly the same age. This would actually help them in their college career because they would learn many things of use to them, especially discipline that which so many of us really need.

In the homes I believe and sincerely hope that there will be many changes to make things easier such as automatic shut-offs for radios, ovens, and irons as well as other appliances which are often left on when the family is out.

I am quite sure that there will be television in many homes. Television will have its defects at first or possibly permanent due to the large number of programs which are merely people reading scripts but which give the impression of being acted on a stage.

The economic world is the section to which the greatest amount of thought and consideration should be given. Are there going to be jobs for the ten million service men who will be discharged from the service and also for the youth that is in industry at the present time? On the same point, what will the women of industry do after the war? I think that there will be enough jobs for everyone for a comparatively short while—the period during which people will be buying the things they have been deprived of due to the war. This period may possibly last fifteen years, as personal war bonds will run out in ten and then they will have more money to buy the peaceful things they need. I think that women in industry will gladly sacrifice their present jobs to the returning servicemen so that they can resume where they left off in the home.

Will wages be cut to a minimum when the war is terminated? I believe wages will gradually decrease, but I do not think they will reach rock bottom as they were about ten years ago, due to the unions and organizations of that type which have been established for the better relations between labor and management.

Another big problem in the economic reconstruction of the Post-war World is the one concerning the paying for the immense destruction caused by the bombing and fighting. Many people are of the opinion that the aggressor nations should stand the entire expense but I am of a contrary belief. I believe that each nation should stand its own expense. I do think that the starters of the war should pay some indemnities, but not to an extent that they will be totally bankrupt since this would give rise to another false leader like Hitler who would make false promises of better things to come and as after the last war the stupid people would naturally follow him thinking that they have nothing, therefore, to lose.

This brings us to the Philosophical angle of the Postwar conditions. Facts prove that Hitler and his storm troopers took over during a period of depression and bankruptcy. If these aggressive nations are forced into bankruptcy it is quite likely that this will be repeated.

In the United States we too have our governmental operations to think about which was brought forth by Dewey and his so-called fight against the rise of communism. Although Roosevelt was elected I do not think and devoutly hope that communism will ever get a permanent foothold in the United States government. If communism gets a grip in America, which I am quite sure it will not, it would mean everyone would work for a common pool and collecting nothing but slight pay and necessities from the government. This would put the lazy men and the ambitious and progressive men on an equal basis and give no opportunities for advancement to the ambitious man.

These are the things I would like to see in a postwar world. I thank you.

business with him, Senator Glass, who has not been in his Senate seat for two years, never did personally confirm the statement, and the only source which gave it out was the White House. Many of Mr. Glass' friends deplored this second-hand publicity. Some refused to believe it on the ground that it was totally out of character. Others explained it on the ground that he was a sick man. There still is considerable mystery about the whole incident.

HOWEVER, there was no mystery about the position of Mr. Glass' colleague, Senator Harry F. Byrd.

Here was one anti-New Deal, anti-fourth-term Democrat who neither trimmed, traded nor straddled in this campaign. He is one who came out of the campaign with his self-respect unimpaired. No one knowing the Virginia primary law, knowing Senator Byrd's position as the head of the Democratic organization in Virginia and knowing Senator Byrd personally expected him to come out in favor of the Republican candidate or to cast his vote for him. His situation in Virginia as the party leader, the party relations and his party responsibility all precluded that. On the contrary, it was equally unthinkable that Senator Byrd, whose personal and political opinion of Mr. Roosevelt's policies, promises, philosophy, performances and friends has never been disguised, should exhibit himself by even the appearance of a fourth-term indorsement.

UNDER heavy fire from the New Dealish Richmond Times-Dispatch with editorials headed "Is Senator Byrd a Democrat?" Senator Byrd never yielded an inch. Bombarded with trick invitations from fourth-term organizations to address them on the issues of the campaign, violently denounced by Mr. Hillman's PAC and the radical Roosevelt press in New York, Senator Byrd firmly declined. From start to finish he refused to make any statement favoring Mr. Roosevelt or to give even qualified indorsement to his fourth-term effort or to say to anyone how he intended to vote. This was equivalent to saying that he would not vote at all—because the Democratic leader in Virginia cannot vote the Republican ticket and this Democratic leader would not vote the Democratic ticket.

CONCERNING the attacks upon

Senator Byrd, the Northern Virginia Daily declared the real purpose was to split the Democratic party in Virginia by uniting and organizing disgruntled factions within the party with others which have recently acquired party affiliation in the hope of seizing control of the organization. "Just as the national Democratic party has been captured by the New Deal National Socialists." And the Charlotte Observer, speaking of the example of Senator Byrd in declining to be bullied, or cajoled into a hypocritical and insincere position, said: "He shines out like a bright star set in the heavens of a black night when silhouetted against the officeholders and office-seekers in other States, who loudly proclaim their faith in an Administration whose policies they are unable to hold on their political stomachs." It is fine to find a man in public life who cares more for his self-respect than for his political future. That is what stands Senator Byrd out in Virginia—and that is what stands him out in the Senate and the country.

CHILDREN'S TOYS CAN BE MADE AT HOME

Play Is Child's Work and His Toys Are His Tools

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN

Children's Toys From the Home Work Shop

Play is really a child's work and his toys are his tools. This "work" and these "tools" are just as important and valuable to the child as are father's or mother's to them. A child learns through his play.

A baby tries to touch and taste and move everything in his sight. Later the child learns the difference in sizes, in textures, in weights and in sounds. He learns to use his muscles through various activities such as walking, crawling, pulling, pushing and climbing. When the child reaches the age of 3 or 4 he needs toys which will help him imitate the activities of grown-ups, such as keeping house, farming, building and other occupations.

Standards for Children's Toys

All play equipment must be durable and sturdy to stand the wear and tear as a child or group of children play with it. Durable toys which will stand repairs and a new coat of paint can be used over long periods of time.

Toys and play equipment should be washable or cleanable.

Always consider safety. Avoid sharp corners and edges, rough surfaces, fragile materials and poor paint.

Types of Play Materials

Many times children receive much more pleasure from crude toys than they do from more expensive ones. Toys which can be put to many uses are valuable for children as they help to develop the child's creative abilities.

Children need various types of play materials. They need toys to promote vigorous activity, other or less vigorous activity and such quiet play materials as can be manipulated to create ideas according to their own individual desires.

Directions for Making Toys or Building

Box Blocks

Wooden cigar boxes, cheese boxes, chalk boxes, dried fruit boxes or similar boxes that are not too large may be made into excellent building blocks. Fasten the covers firmly either with small brads or with plastic wood. Give the boxes a good coat of enamel in bright colors. These will be easy to clean. Twenty to thirty blocks are usually adequate for one child.

Nested Cans

Nested cans provide cylinders for building. Use 4 or 5 cans of nearly the same height but of different diameters. Open cans with an opener which leaves smooth edges turned down. Wash them thoroughly, removing labels. Paint different bright colors as red, green, blue and yellow. If desired, paste simple pictures out from magazines on the cans and shellac over these with a clear shellac.

For Imitative Play—

Doll Cradle

A grape basket may be made into a cradle by screwing on rockers or a bassinet may be made if small wheels on wooden axle are available. Remove the handle from the basket. Wooden coat hangers may be used for rockers, if a cradle is desired. Take the coat hanger and remove the metal hook. Cut the hanger the desired size in relation to the size of the basket. Fasten the rockers to the basket with screws clinching them so there are no sharp edges protruding. Paint the basket with a light colored enamel or cover with a dainty print with a flounce of the same on elastic. If a canopy is desired, this may be made of heavy cardboard, wire or bamboo splints. It can be covered with the same covering as used on the cradle.

Doll Carriage

Use the jumbo size grape basket. Mount it on wooden axles to which wooden wheels have been attached. Make the hood in the same manner as described in the cradle. The handle may be made from thin pieces of wood such as yardsticks, about 4 inches in diameter, turned. Mount on an axle about 10 inches in length, depending upon the width of the wagon. Use a metal shield, such as is used in plastering, in the center of the wheel where the screw passes through the wheel to the axle. Use a piece of wood $\frac{3}{4}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ x 20 inches long for the handle. Taper the end which the child grasps to $\frac{1}{2}$ inch on a side. Bore a small hole $\frac{1}{4}$ inches from the end of the handle and insert a small rounded 3-inch peg. Attach handle to wagon with a small hinge, tapering the end so that it will fit flat to the end of the wagon.

Wagon

Use a wooden box such as dried fruit is packed in. If a lathe is available, have wheels which are

Trains

Very satisfactory trains of cars may be made by mounting cheese boxes (5 lb. size), on wheels and axles. Wheels may be made of wooden button molds or 2-inch wheels may be cut from 3-ply wood. These are screwed to wooden axles $\frac{3}{4}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ x 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in size. Doors may be cut in the sides of some boxes and the top nailed on the box for a box car. Other boxes may have the tops left off forming open cars. Flat cars may be made by mounting a board on axles and wheels. The axles for the cars are placed about 2 inches from the ends of the cars. Screw hooks and screw eyes are attached in opposite ends, so that a number of cars may be fastened together.

For the engine, use a cheese box, and cut off one-third of its height from the four sides. Remove one end of the box and make a diagonal cut about 3 inches in length. When the end is nailed in place this will form the cow catcher of the engine. A long round tin can such as a baking powder can will form the boiler of the engine. Spools of different shapes and sizes represent the smokestack, bell etc., of the engine. Screw the spools in place on the side of the can, using small wooden blocks on the inside of the can to make the screws secure. Use a screw which will be long enough to go through the spool and fasten to the block inside. Fasten the can to the top of the cheese box, using blocks of wood inside the can to hold it secure. Nail this in place on the foundation. Fasten a small spool to the cover of the can to represent headlight in the same manner as already mentioned and place on can.

For the cab on the engine use an end portion of a cheese box about 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length. The top of the cab should extend out beyond the body so may be cut about 2 inches in length. Fasten cab to foundation. Nail wheels and axles into place. One set of wheels should be placed $\frac{5}{8}$ inches from the cab end of the engine, the second set 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the first and the third set 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the front of the engine. Place screw eye in the middle of the coil catcher through which a cord can be attached so that the engine may be drawn. Place a screw hook in the middle of the opposite end to attach to the coal car.

To make the coal car, cut a cheese box in half crosswise. Fit a piece of wood 2 inches high into the open end and nail in place. Round off edges above this piece and mount on axles placing axles 5/8 inch from ends. Place screw hook and screw eye in the coal car to attach it to the engine and cars.

Paint the engine and coal car black. The other cars may be painted in different colors.

Stick Horse

For the stick horse, cut a broomstick about 32 inches long. Paint it a yellow or rich brown color. Other colors may be used. For the head use a man's sock. Color or the fact that it is darned makes little difference. Stuff as full as possible with excelsior, cotton, corn husks or other material. The broomstick must be pushed well up through the excelsior and the sock opening tacked to it. If thumbs or fingers of worn-out gloves are available they may be stuffed and sewed in place for ears. Sew buttons on for eyes, use strips of leather or shoe strings for bridle and lines. Outline nostrils and teeth using white or black darning or embroidery floss.

Tug Boat

1 piece of wood 3/4" x 6 1/4" x 11 1/4" (base)
1 piece of wood 3/4" x 3 1/2" x 7 3/4" (cabin)
1 piece of wood 1 1/4" x 3 1/2" x 7 3/4" (cabin)
(Use wood having lightest possible weight)
3 empty spools.

Saw ends of base and cabin to shape and nail the cabin to the base. Trim one end from the spools and screw them to the top of the cabin to represent smoke stacks. Insert a screw eye in end of base. Sandpaper all edges so they will be very smooth. Apply two coats of enamel, allowing the first coat to dry thoroughly, before the second is applied. Trim base and smoke stacks with a contrasting color.

Drum

Coffee or cracker can
Adhesive tape
String
2 Clothes pins

Punch a hole in the middle of the tin and one in the bottom of the can and hammer down the rough edges inside. Thread a strong string through the holes and tie with a strong knot. Fasten the lid on with adhesive tape. The can may be given a coat of bright colored enamel. Two clothes pins will serve as drum sticks.

This drum will also make an excellent pull toy for the 1-2 year old child. Place a few pebbles in the can before fastening the lid with the tape. Place a spool in the middle of the string for a good hand hold.

For Quiet Play—

Homemade Clay

Mix 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup salt and 1 tablespoon powdered alum, with enough water to hold it together (about 1/3 cup). Color with vegetable dye, mercurochrome or bluing. Children enjoy rolling this material and modeling it into original forms. When not in use, keep in a covered container. As children play with the clay, the surface dries from exposure to air. A little additional water kneaded into the clay will keep it in good condition.

Colored Beads

Mix 7 cup flour and 1/2 cup salt water with enough water to make a thick dough. Color with vegetable dyes, mercurochrome or bluing. Divide into small pieces, roll into beads and make a hole in the center of each with a nail. Let dry and string on tape or string.

For the Infant—

The Spool Doll

Use spools of different sizes and a discarded silk stocking. For the body of the doll use a large spool such as a ribbon, tape or carpet thread spool. Use 3 medium sized and 2 spools such as No. 79 for the arms. Small darning cotton spools for the hands and feet. Use a large spool for the head. Enamel the spools in different colors being sure to use an enamel which will not come off or fade should the toy be put in the mouth.

Cut the foot from an old silk stocking. Silk stockings are better than cotton as they are elastic enough to make a doll which is loose-jointed and the child can shake. Pull the leg of the stocking through the large spool leaving an equal amount above and below. Cut the lower part of the stocking in two and tie a knot in each part next to the spool. Thread 3 medium sized spools and a small darning cotton spool on each. Tie knots in the end of each piece of stocking and make secure with two or three stitches. Divide the upper part of the stocking into three parts and tie a knot in each part next to the body. Place 2 spools for the arm and a small darning cotton spool for the hand on two pieces, tie a knot at the end and sew with 2 or 3 stitches. Place a larger spool on the third strip to represent the head. A face may be drawn on one or both sides of the head. A small darning cotton spool may represent a hat. Tie a knot and stitch securely. The top of the stocking will form the top of the toy.

Unpainted spools may be strung on white cotton tape in the same way as on the stocking. This will enable them to be boiled and cleaned easily.

MAKE MOST OF THE WILD GAME WHILE IT IS AVAILABLE

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham

(Home Economics Representative)

Don't waste a bit of game brought home this fall in Bucks County. Among the reasons for this appeal are the hunter wants all of the game used, you as a homemaker dislike wasting food, and game is a saving in cost and red points.

It is advisable to use or sharp-freeze most of the game as soon as possible. Last year a large amount of deer meat spoiled. Some families had left it in an outside shed where it remained frozen, then there were three days of unusually warm weather and the venison spoiled.

It is up to the homemaker to make wild game a treat for the entire family, and that means special attention to cooking. Very often game needs longer cooking than other kinds of meat. Cooking in a covered pan, usually is best for game, and because most game meat is very lean, fat should be added. Otherwise most of the rules for cooking poultry and meat hold for game.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission rules that all small game must be disposed of within 30 days and all big game within 60 days after close of season. Thus it is against the law to can any game. It is permissible to freeze it, but it must be used within the 60-day limit.

USE NAZI VEHICLES

AIR SERVICE COMMAND, England — (INS) — Air Service Command mechanics, working on landing strips behind the lines in France, are using German vehicles to fill their transportation needs, it was announced today. Captured vehicles are collected in a "pool," then issued with U. S. Army serial numbers to various units behind the lines, thereby releasing standard American trucks for duty in the front line sectors.

BRITAIN GETS READY FOR RECONVERSION

1,000 State-Built Factories To Be Turned Over To Private Industry ON LONG-LEASE BASIS

By Howard Berry
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Nov. 17—Britain is gearing itself to revert to post-war industrial production on a large scale.

The first step has been taken by the government, which has decided that more than 1,000 surplus state-built and owned factories, are to be turned over to British manufacturers for peace-time industrial purposes.

Each of the factories has 10,000 square feet of floor space or more, and are valued at many millions of dollars.

They will be let to selected contractors for a period of 10 years, with an option to the tenants at the end of that period for further long-term leases.

The initial rent under the 10-year lease will be based on the rental value in the open market on the 1939 value.

To prevent a repetition of the chaos which followed the disposal of government-built factories after World War I, the government has decided that the factories will be leased only to applicants in accordance with the national interest.

Leasing of the factories will be made on the following considerations:

1. The establishment of a balanced distribution of industry to maintain employment in the old "depressed" areas like South Wales and Durham.

2. Re-establishment and expansion of export trade.

3. Maintenance of war potential.

4. Requirements of town and country planning.

5. Ability of applicants to make efficient use of the factories with the minimum of reconstruction.

Firms that have been blitzed or requisitioned will have special consideration on grounds of equity.

After the last war governmental factories were sold by competitive tender which led to grave abuses and maldistribution of industry.

It is hoped by the new method of allocating space in advance to avoid the old errors and to ensure as far as possible that industries such as electrical goods; radio equipment, plastics, domestic appliances and clocks and watches will be established and maintained in places like Merthyr, Wales, where there was 86 per cent unemployment at the height of the depression.

Sir Philip Watter, British Controller-General of Factories and Storage Space, who has charge of the scheme, is of the opinion that there will be many more applicants than factories.

"Many hundreds of modern production plants have been built," said Sir Philip. "Some are specialized, but the majority can readily be turned over to peace-time requirements."

Much of the factory space will be allocated before the war in Europe is over, but it is not expected that they will be taken over until hostilities have ended. By allocating the factories now, however, British business men will be able to plan ahead for the switch over to peace-time production.

ROSEMONT — (INS) — Among other things, the Japs lost a $5000 bequest by warring against the United States. Mrs. Leah G. Johnson, who won the money to Tsuda College in Tokyo but revoked it following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

EAST NORRITON TOWNSHIP — (INS) — Harry Knoeller suspected foul play in the mysterious comings and goings of his 50 young chickens, but he couldn't put his finger on it. They disappeared October 28 for five days then reappeared suddenly on their old roosts.

McKEESPORT — (INS) — Pvt. James Clark, 14, was bitter about having to readjust himself to civilian life after nearly a year's service in the paratroops. "It all had to happen just as I was about to go overseas," protested the youth, who was discharged following a letter from his grandmother.

JOHNSTOWN — (INS) — Police court fines were on the upward trend in Johnstown. Collections for the first nine months of 1944 totaled $17,630 compared with $11,309 for the same period last year.

HARRISBURG — (INS) — Cuts and bruises were the only injuries suffered by Darrah Oves, city road roller operator, when the brakes on his 10-ton machine failed to hold while traveling down a steep hill and the vehicle sped through a busy intersection and overturned.

EXCISE TAX AIDS MANAGEMENT OF WILDLIFE MEANS

First Appropriation Became
Effective on July 1st,
1938

$10,900,000 AVAILABLE

Pennsylvania's Apportionment
During Seven Years
Totalled $507,163.92

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16 — The Federal Government's excise tax on sporting firearms and ammunition imposed at 10% in 1932 and increased to 11% in 1940, revenues from which normally amount to about three million dollars a year, is providing material aid in the management of Pennsylvania's wildlife resources, according to W. Gard Conklin, Chief of the Division of Lands of the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

Sportsmen of the United States, believing these revenues should be used for their benefit, finally persuaded Congress in 1937 to earmark the income for wildlife restoration purposes in all the States adopting enabling legislation, subject to annual appropriations by Congress.

The first appropriation became effective July 1, 1938. During the seven year period to date, a total of $10,900,000 has been made available to the Fish and Wildlife Service of the United States Department of the Interior for apportionment to State game departments. That Service, however, is permitted to retain not to exceed 10% for management of the program. In other words, about 90% of the $10,900,000 was made available to the respective States for game restoration purposes approved by the Fish and Wildlife Service. For approved projects, the Federal Government pays 75% of the costs and the State concerned the other 25%.

Pennsylvania's apportionment during the seven-year period amounted to $507,163.92, of which approximately 80% was allocated for land acquisition projects, and the most of the remainder for research studies and land management projects.

Game research projects were designed to obtain scientific data to assist in managing intelligently the Commonwealth's wildlife for recreational purposes. Seven such projects were approved, mainly for field studies of our native wildlife problems, and have already made available much information of definite value to sportsmen and the Game Commission.

Land Management projects provided for studies of forest wildlife problems including forest growth cutting operations, forest fires and controlled burnings to determine the ultimate effect on game food and cover.

None of the research and management projects have been completed because the experts who were making the studies are now serving in the armed forces. It is expected, however, that the various projects will be revived after the war and pursued to completion.

Land acquisition projects provided for the purchase of 169 tracts of land totalling 123,669 acres distributed throughout the State. Many of the tracts were small additions to State Game Lands previously acquired for the Commission, although a few included several thousand acres to form the nucleus of new unit blocks of State Game Lands. Title is now vested in the Commonwealth for use of the Game Commission for about 85% of the acreage included in approved projects.

The Commission's land purchase program is continuing, although on a greatly reduced scale during the war. Funds are available for making additional purchases, but no special efforts are being exerted to secure options from land owners due to a lack of manpower. Owners desiring to offer their lands should contact local game protectors or the Division of Lands of the Game Commission at Harrisburg.

ANKS SPEARHEAD A BIG OFFENSIVE; PENETRATE REICH

Penetrate Six Miles Through New Gap in Siegfried Line

BLAZE WITH ACTION Estimate 1,500,000 Allied Troops Hurlled Into The Fray

Supreme Headquarters, A. E. F., Paris, Nov. 17.—(INS)—American Sixth Army troops, spearheading the gigantic general offensive of six Allied armies against the German westwall, were reported in front patches to have penetrated six miles inside the Reich through a new gap smashed into the Siegfried line.

The whole western front blazed with action across an expanse of more than 400 miles as the six armies, four of them comprised of seasoned United States troops, tore into the westwall in a mounting offensive which may develop into the decisive battle to defeat the Nazi armies in western Europe.

Unofficial estimates placed the total of Allied troops hurled into the fray at 1,500,000, outnumbering the reported 500,000 German defenders three to one.

The American Ninth Army tore new holes in the Siegfried Line above Aachen as British forces to the north closed in on the Reich frontier from eastern Holland and American and French armies in western France smashed forward through the outer defenses on the Nazi homeland.

Considerable progress was made in the general offensive all along the line, with the Nazis in some sectors, particularly at the lower end of the front in France carrying out hurried demolitions.

The enemy fell back rapidly in the face of the British Second Army advance through the Netherlands to make a stand at the Maas River.

2,000 Garments Shown At Torresdale-Andalusia

TORRESDALE, Nov. 17.—Nearly 2,000 articles of clothing were displayed at the annual exhibit of Torresdale-Andalusia Branch, Needlework Guild of America here Wednesday evening.

The program, held in the parish house of All Saints P. E. Church, was announced by the president, Miss Lydia Paxson, who extended a welcome. She called upon the Rev. Percy Brown, rector of All Saints Church, who offered prayer; and the secretary, Miss Helen O'Reilly, and the treasurer, Mrs. Edwin M. Lathrop, who gave their reports.

Major Edith Wenlock, of South Langhorne, representing the Salvation Army, told of work of that organization, and presented its different social agencies and activities in Philadelphia and vicinity.

Another speaker was Miss Stryker, retired nation president of the Junior Needlework Guild.

Vocal solos were given by Dr. John Rafferty; and piano solos by Miss Audrey Lee Lathrop.

NOW A PRISONER

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McCole, of Lansford, formerly of Bristol, received word this week that their son, PFC Roy McCole, who was missing in action, is a prisoner of war. PFC McCole had been reported missing in action in August, and the good news that he is alive, although a prisoner, was received this week in a letter written by the soldier.

POLISH AND NAZI TROOPS FIGHT FIERCELY AT MONTE CASTELLACCIO

Rome—Fierce fighting raged today on the rugged slopes of Monte Castellaccio where Polish troops sought to oust stubborn German defenders on the west flank of the British Eighth Army.

General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson disclosed that the Poles had smashed against "strong enemy defenses" on Mount Castellaccio after they had seized the town of Converselle, northwest of Castrocaro.

The Germans were pressed in other sectors by both the American Fifth Army and the British Eighth, and, in a desperate move to stave off the Allied advances in the Adriatic coastal sector, the enemy flooded an area south of Ravenna by demolishing the banks of the Flumini River.

With the Poles blasting out heavily defended and concealed positions of the enemy in Mount Castellaccio, the Eighth Army inched northward toward the vital city of Faenza, along the Bologna-Rimini communications lines. Castellaccio is a key feature dominating German defenses in a sector west of Forli.

British troops of the Eighth Army, in the meantime, consolidated newly won ground in the vicinity of Forli, north and west of the city.

Indian forces teamed with the British on the right flank of the American Fifth Army to overrun the important road center of Modigliana, and farther west, American units under Lieut. Gen. Mark Wayne Clark advanced more than a mile through the Serchio Valley.

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Writing from one of the islands in the Philippines, Capt. Victor A. Sharrett, of Doylestown, who has been in the service since July, 1941, and who for some time was stationed on the Gilbert Islands, comments upon the extreme cruelty of the Japanese soldiers, especially in the treatment of the native women and their children.

In a recent communication to his wife, Mrs. Mildred Sharrett, this commanding officer of a Quartermaster depot, said it is a pitiful sight to see the natives on the Philippines.

"It makes your heart sick to see the women carrying their babies around with bad wounds in their heads and other parts of their bodies. The Japs drove them from their homes, stole their food and finally drove them back into the hills. Natives refusing to comply with the orders of the Japs were decapitated.

"Living on a starvation diet during the three years the Japs had control over the Philippines, the natives are merely skin and bone.

"The Filipinos, fighting as guerrillas, are killing every Jap they find, and they certainly are doing a fine job. Every native hates the Japs, and they truly are a fighting people."

In the communication Capt. Sharrett said:

Boake Carter Dies Suddenly in Hospital

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Boake Carter, writer and news commentator, died last night shortly after he was admitted to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital.

Hospital attendants declined to reveal the cause of death.

He was 46 years old.

Carter was a commentator with millions of friends and enemies. His ability to view domestic and foreign events from a neutral corner came as a direct result of experience. He had travelled widely and his adventures took him to the far corners of the world.

He was born in the British Consulate at South Baku, Russia, of Irish-English parents, educated in England, travelled in almost every country on the globe, spent several years in newspaper work in the United States before he transferred his activities to the radio. In two nation-wide polls he was voted the outstanding news commentator.

Carter served for a time in France as correspondent for the London Daily Mail. He worked for two years in the oil fields of Mexico.

POSTPONE SESSION

The meeting of Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women scheduled for November 21st, has been postponed to November 28th. The meeting will be held in the Travel Club home at eight o'clock. This, states the president, Mrs. David Sheerer, Jr., is a very important meeting, as reports of the convention of Republican women being held in Harrisburg this week, will be presented, and other matters of interest discussed.

Newportville Cubs To Collect Newspapers

NEWPORTVILLE, Nov. 17.—Newportville cubs, Pack 44, will collect newspapers again tomorrow throughout the community under the supervision of W. H. Gillette, Cub Leader.

Three and one-half loads, weighing 1½ tons were collected last Saturday by the Pack.

"Collections were somewhat retarded," said Mr. Gillette, "through lack of properly preparing the papers. Residents are asked to keep the newspapers flat and tied with string in bundles if possible."

BENSALEM QUOTA IN BONDS SET AT $354,375

Committee Desires Several More Volunteers To Solicit Sales

PUPILS WILL ASSIST

Three hundred and fifty-four thousand, three hundred and seventy-five dollars is the quota allotted Bensalem Township for the 6th War Loan Drive by the government. Mrs. E. Paul Patton, township chairman of the war finance committee, has been informed.

The committee, recently revised due to the resignation of two district chairmen, is anxious to add several new volunteer solicitors to its ranks. Those wishing to be of great service to their country by joining the army of war bond salesmen, may contact the W. F. C. chairman in their district: Mrs. Ella Weber, Andalusia, Corn. 0419; Mrs. George Vandegriff, Cornwells and Eddington, Corn. 0220; Mrs. Walter H. Gillette, Bridgewater and Newportville, Bristol 7687; Mrs. Joseph Groner, Upper Bensalem, Halmerville 6677. The district of Trevoise will be thoroughly canvassed by pupils of the Trevoise school under supervision of Howard Hilgendorff, principal. Echo Beach section, covered by Mrs. William Duerr and her workers. No new solicitors are needed at present for these territories.

Section quotas will be announced later with a complete list of official canvassers, together with the goal of the three schools and scout units participating in the drive.

Elementary Teachers Meet At Co. Seat Tomorrow

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 17.—The Bucks County Elementary Teachers' Institute will be held at the high school tomorrow, the program for the day beginning at nine a. m. with a demonstration of visual aids given by Assistant Superintendent Paul Gruber and Mrs. Mary Windle.

The morning session will be devoted to the discussion of technical subjects including lunch programs, curriculum programs and reading demonstrations. Mrs. Mary J. Fleetham, home economics representative, and the elementary supervisor, Dr. Genevieve Bowen, will take part in the program.

Luncheon for those attending will be served in the school cafeteria in two groups, one at 11:45 a. m. and the other at 12:30 p. m. Addresses during the afternoon session are to be made by Charles Philhower, Westfield, N. J., who will speak on the Lenapi Indian, and by Ezra Whitman, War Finance committee, on stamp and bond drives in the schools.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

One Man Who Stood Firm

Washington, Nov. 16.—OFTEN in a political campaign there are some outstanding party figures who find themselves in positions of acute embarrassment. Either they have so strongly opposed the policies of the man at the head of the ticket that support of him involves a mortifying swallowing of their own words, or they distrust him so intensely that they feel his defeat would be good for the country as well as gratifying to themselves.

THERE was an unusual number of these deeply pained gentlemen in the last campaign—and nearly all of them on the Democratic side. The most conspicuous one among the Republicans, of course, was the late Wendell Willkie. Eventually, how he would have solved his problem no one is entitled to state. There was also Senator Ball, of Minnesota, who went the whole dis-

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TELL ROTARIANS "WHAT I'D LIKE TO SEE IN POST-WAR WORLD;" TWO STUDENTS PRESENT THEIR IDEAS ON SUBJECT

The subject, "What I Would Like To See In The Post-War World" was very ably discussed at the weekly meeting of the Bristol Rotary Club at the Elks' Home yesterday afternoon when two Bristol High School seniors, Robert Clickenger and Jack Stetson, gave Rotarians their ideas on the subject.

Mr. Clickenger's speech follows: Mr. President, members of the Rotary Club, and guests, The honor granted me by one of my instructors to speak to you this afternoon cannot be expressed in words.

Being a senior in Bristol High I have naturally been thinking about what I would do after my graduation day has passed, provided this terrible world war is over by that time.

I would like to take a few minutes of your time and express my views on the subject of "What I would like to see in the post war world."

First I will break this down into three distinct groups—No. 1, commercial; No. 2, Transportation, and No. 3, social.

First, "Commercial." I would like to see a high tariff. This would not only allow our manufacturers to produce on a par with foreign neighbors, but would allow us the privilege of selling our products to our foreign neighbors due to the fact that after this war millions of dollars must be spent to rebuild all that has been destroyed in the past years.

The problem has come up as to whether the Republican party has to be in office to have a high tariff. The answer is "no." Congress has the privilege of putting on a high tariff. Either the Republican or the Democratic party can be in office; it does not make any difference.

Again, if our factories are kept busy we will be able to maintain a standard of wages which will help to keep up our standard of living which at this time leads all countries of the universe.

Second, "Transportation." This is a large endeavor but nevertheless I would like and hope to see some of the following ideas put into use. First I would like to see a vast amount of super highways built—this would tend to speed our deliveries from city to city and would eliminate traffic tie-ups which now occur much too often. It would eliminate traffic accidents due to the fact that crossings are practically eliminated. Incidentally a very good friend of mine, Elmer H. Wene, has a pending Congress bill for post war construction of 25,000 mile network of super highways. So I may live to see the day when this is completed.

Second, I would like to see air freight rates reduced to a level that would enable fruit and produce raisers to ship in this manner because this would enable us to have a much fresher fruit and produce from the South and West than we are now getting. In fact, the producer would be able to wait until the fruit was ripe, and then pick it, where as now he has to pick it en route. Quite some time ago, the airplane was used as an experiment to ship fruit from Alaska to the East. The producer picked luscious red strawberries and had them sent here to the East by plane. On arriving they found the strawberries just like they were before they were sent. This proved the experiment successful.

Third, I would like to see air transportation costs reduced to a level that would enable the average citizen to travel in this way if he so desired.

Fourth, knowing that the large airline corporations will undoubtedly do a vast amount of business and reduce their rates, I still would like to see a pleasure plane built and sold at a price that would enable the average man to travel in this manner. Experiments have already taken place in the operations and costs of airplanes for postwar use. To learn to operate these planes will not take long for any

CLUBWOMEN INFORMED OF 'DUMBARTON OAKS'

Sorosis at Langhorne Has International Relations Program

PLAN FOR EVENTS

LANGHORNE, Nov. 17.—The speaker appearing before Sorosis yesterday afternoon in the library here was Richard Wood, radio commentator, whose home is in Moorestown, N. J. The subject of Mr. Wood was "Where do we go from Dumbarton Oaks?" He was presented to the club women by Mrs. Elmer Pickett, chairman of international relations committee.

Mrs. Pickett also announced numbers by the Sorosis chorus, these being "Hymn of Thanks" and "Where Heaven Is." The chorus was directed by Mrs. Ernest Gamble, with Mrs. Harvey Krouse as accompanist.

The business meeting was in charge of Mrs. Lester Hanson, who announced the cancer clinic forum to be conducted on November 27th at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. Mrs. Philip G. Lewis announced a session of the "Fix It Up and Make It Do" group, to be held November 20th at her home, the hour being eight p. m.

The women were informed that Junior Sorosis members have invited the seniors to a program at the community house on December 12th.

The Sorosis will next meet on December 7th when Mrs. B. S. Phelps will have a program on "Christmas Decorations."

CADETS SELLING FLAGS

The American Legion Cadets of Robert W. Bracken Post are conducting a "Fly the Flag" campaign. All Americans should "fly the flag" every day. For those who do not have a flag, the Cadets are in a position to furnish flags of any size desired, at a very reasonable cost. They can furnish poles for lawn, curb, building or window. Worn out flags can be replaced with a new flag. Anyone desiring to avail themselves of this service may contact any cadet or Terence Taffe at the Post home, or telephone Bristol 456. Make every day "Flag Day."

ENGAGED TO WED

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brown, McKinley street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Matilda N. Brown, to Sgt. Richard S. Van Aken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Aken, Sr., McKinley street. Sgt. Van Aken is now stationed in the Far East. No date has been set for the wedding.

Community Players Plan For "Gay Nineties" Show

TULLYTOWN, Nov. 17.—A meeting of Tullytown Community Players was held Tuesday evening at the home of Elwood Carlen. The president, Richard Watson, presided, with reports being given by Mrs. Benjamin King, secretary, and Elwood Carlen, treasurer.

Plans were made for a "Gay Nineties Show" to be held in January. It was also decided to hold a Christmas party, December 12th, at Green Light Restaurant. Refreshments were served to: Mrs. Maurice Cavin, Mrs. Richard Watson, Mrs. William Barwis, Miss Doris Nelson, Mrs. Howard Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Benjamin King, Mrs. Helen Nichols, Richard Watson, William Swangler, Elwood Carlen, and Carman DiCicco.

NEED FOR GARMENTS IS BECOMING GREATER

Rev. Maurice Levit, 5th St. Mission, Phila., Speaks To Needlework Guild

TOTAL EXHIBITED 2237

That in spite of increased employment of the past few years there are countless families in need of help was impressed vividly upon members of Bristol Branch, Needlework Guild of America, yesterday afternoon. This message was brought to the women by the Rev. Maurice Levit, superintendent of Fifth Street Mission and Community Center, Philadelphia, as he told of his experiences of the past 35 years in mission and settlement work. The annual exhibit was held in the community house.

The Rev. Mr. Levit informed that although there appears to be a demand for workers in many plants, lay-offs are becoming more common. "And," he added, "all the people are not in defense work, and all don't live in Bristol." He then told of the hundreds of old folks with whom workers at the mission come in contact daily—men and women too old or unable to work, who endeavor to exist on their old age allotments. "At the most they receive $36 or $37 a month. And when they pay probably $15 a month for their rooms, then expend some for gas and electricity, that leaves very little for food. They simply can't buy clothing, and that is where the work of the mission fits in, and we are so glad when we have clothing from the Needlework Guilds and other sources to give them."

The speaker, who mentioned that "the babies are coming in bunches like bananas," right now, told how so many of the young women in the poorer section of Philadelphia where he is located, find the allotments from their service-men husbands' pay doesn't afford much, if any, for layettes. "And we are sending one layette out after another," he commented as he cited individual cases, and the gratitude for the garments.

War Mothers of Bristol Have Anniversary Banquet

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 17.—American War Mothers of Bristol Chapter participated in the first anniversary banquet at the Lido Venice, here, last evening. Covers were arranged for 42.

The blessing was asked by the chaplain, Mrs. Paul White; and Mrs. Robert Moss, president, extended congratulations to the members on their year of work, and expressed hope for successful years to come.

Mrs. John Wiesner was chairman of the banquet committee; and Mrs. David Hutchinson, 1st vice president, presented a bouquet of chrysanthemums to Mrs. Moss on behalf of the organization. The tables were also decorated with chrysanthemums. Organ music was provided during dinner; and a floor show followed.

DI PIETRA IS SAFE; MISSING MAN MAKES A FORCED LANDING

Bristol Terrace Resident Tells of Landing in Yugoslavia

CITATION TO SQUAD

Tells of Homes Burned, and Stock Missing in Wake of Germans

That Staff Sgt. Ben DiPietra, 20, of 146 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace, is safe and well, is the message contained in letters received this week by his parents after he had been reported missing in action.

Staff Sgt. DiPietra, who has informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John DiPietra, and his sister, Miss Viola DiPietra, that he and others of his crew made a forced landing in Yugoslavia, states that he is "in perfect shape and feels fit as a fiddle."

The young engineer of a B-24 Liberator had been reported missing early this month, he having been overseas since September 17th. The telegram stated that he was missing over Italy as of October 14th. He and members of the crew, who have received the Presidential citation, made good on their forced landing, and in his letters the localite informs that his failure to write sooner is due to no fault of his own. He adds: "I can't tell you where I've been but maybe in a few weeks I'll be able to give you all the details." In a later letter he was able to inform his family "We were forced down in Yugoslavia and spent quite some time there before we were brought back here. That's all I can say."

As censorship was lifted to a greater degree, the young man was able in subsequent letters to give more information. He then says: "It all started on a raid way up there. The Japs got one of our engines just before 'Bombs Away.' After we turned away we lost our formation, the main reason being that we only had three and plenty of weight. It sure is a funny feeling coming back by yourself without any outside protection except your own guns. Well, we made it as far as Yugoslavia where we ran out of gas. There we made a forced landing. The people were very friendly and soon took us to a town where we waited to get out. Had a long wait as you can see. In the future just wait until you're sure until you start worrying. They say that nine out of ten missing return."

"We received our presidential citation today. We weren't here when the squad got it, so we were a little late. . . . We are still waiting to go to the rest camp. . . ."

In his most recent missive Sgt. DiPietra enclosed the letter he had written while in Yugoslavia, but had not gotten opportunity to mail. In it, after telling of the forced landing, and of the quick arrival of a crowd of friendly people, he mentioned that "After four days' travelling we landed at this place. Sometimes we walked and sometimes we rode in a wagon. In coming here we passed many towns and villages where the Germans had been before. There wasn't much left. Homes burned down to the ground, livestock gone, and even the young girls. The family where we are staying now had one girl taken away."

"The people treat us very good. Last night there was a dance which we attended. Had a very good time. . . . We have very good food. There is chicken at least five times a week (I'm no cook for the gang). They cost us less than ½ dollar apiece; also have turkeys and ducks. Our breakfast is four eggs apiece, anyway you want them. . . . I can't tell you how we are going to leave here, but maybe some day I will."

THE TRUTH ONCE MORE

The only thing that is certain about the many questions that beset the world is that no single mind knows all the answers. This is not a matter for despair. It may be argued that it is essential to the creation of a permanent peace that all the nations affected send their best minds into discussions of ways and means. Fixing responsibility for blunders in the political affairs of any country, even this proud nation, is no single chore. But it is part of the game of self-government as it is practiced here. Facts are most annoyingly elusive. The truth has a way of concealing itself or assuming disguises that baffle the earnest seeker. All the way up from spotting the boy whose ball smashed the neighbor's window to marking the statesman whose errors or vanity have wrought mischief, the difficulty is one of degree.

The truth has been praised by philosophers and poets without strengthening it as a feature of human conduct. Even in familiar conversation one describing an incident he personally witnessed is prone to embellish the story to make it more effective.

Perhaps the best vehicles for misinformation is the rumor form, with the arresting prelude, "Have you heard so-and-so?"

Coventry Patmore, a very good poet, thought the truth is mighty and will prevail when no-body cares whether it prevails or not.

The general subject is a fruitful one and invites unhurried meditation.

RENAULT

Louis Renault, pioneer manufacturer of automobiles in France and an industrial genius, is dead at the age of 63. Renault's factories covered many acres and employed 40,000 men. He became disturbed in later years by the invasion of American motor cars and called on France to bar them, but without success. France would not enact the prohibitive tariff he suggested.

When Renault's property came under the Nazi conquerors, Renault continued to operate the plants, afterward explaining that this preserved the equipment, and gave Frenchmen employment and saved them from the fate of being shipped to Germany as laborers.

With the liberation of France, Renault was arrested on the charge of working with the enemy. His health was such that instead of being put in jail he was placed in a nursing home. At the time of his arrest the new French government seized his properties and so the name of Renault, so long familiar the world over, passes from current French affairs.

"During the first five days I was here," wrote Capt. Sharrett, "I practically lived on canned milk, but now I am able to eat a little better and I am forcing myself to eat three meals a day."

Speaking before 40 members and guests of Warrington Lions Club, this week, Chief Bender, a number of years ago a member of the pitching staff of the Athletics, commented in an interesting manner upon his experiences as an athlete.

A graduate of the Carlisle School for Indians and Dickinson College, Bender, who was introduced by Alvah Clarence, said he started pitching for the Athletics in 1903, and in this connection told of one game he lost by a score of 5-1 even though he struck out 21 men. His catcher on that occasion, he said, had 19 assists.

The Buckingham Parent-Teacher Association meeting was held in the high school gymnasium on Tuesday, with 50 persons in attendance.

After a short business meeting the health and physical education departments presented a program which explained the work of those departments. Russell Hahn opened a discussion, and outlined the physical education program in the school.

Mr. Hahn listed the objectives of physical education and then explained the manner in which these objectives are being carried out.

Violet Kniele, executive secretary of the Buckingham Intra-Mural Council, explained the work of that organization. She stated in this connection that 95 per cent of the students take part in intra-mural sports.

Need For Garments Is Becoming Greater

The Rev. Mr. Levitt, who was introduced by Mrs. Walter W. Pitzenka, Bristol Guild president, told of the thrill afforded shortly after he started the Fifth Street Mission, when a package of new garments arrived from a Guild. "We had been used to discarded clothing and were glad to get that," At present new garments are sent there from 73 Guilds.

"I found when I first started the mission that the people were in great need. The church in that area had been going down. The people had good preaching and good music, but I decided what they needed was food, warm clothing and someone to take an interest in them."

For 27 years he has been located at this mission which at present touches the lives of a thousand girls and boys and a thousand adults in this "melting pot."

Thirty-two different nationalities are to be found in that congested section. The 65 classes and clubs which meet each week at the center, the 12 religious services, the classes in English and Russian, were mentioned.

"There are many in need, but the old folks seem to call for special attention. They are only half fed. We must supplement what little they have to eat, and they have no funds at all for clothing." He told that the needs of the young folks are usually due to the husbands being in service and funds being low; husbands deserting wives; the men being sentenced to prison, or one or both parents being ill. "It is true, we don't have the bread lines we had from 1930 to 1940, but there is still a need. We're in big business down there when it comes to giving out things. We don't have the calls for food, possibly only one a week now, but the folks do need clothes. Remember the firms were hiring all who could stand on two feet without falling over, but now employment is dropping and the old and infirm are feeling it. We try to bring a little joy into their lives," he added as he told of the high-light of the year for the old folks at the mission—a Thanksgiving turkey lunch. "They come early just to absorb the warmth and be in a place well lighted. And the joy is not only in that turkey meal, but in being able to linger over it and talk and talk and laugh with all the folks. It's a great occasion, and even though it is an expense we feel that is one little bit of sunshine we can bring into these old folks' lives."

"Yes, I preach—I preach with clothes. I preach with shoes. I preach with all sorts of Needlework Guild and other garments, and sometimes I preach a sermon. But we must minister to them, for we are told 'The poor ye have with you always.'

The garments received this year totaled 2237, just two less than last year. Those whose names were on the honor roll are: Sewing Department, 243; Mrs. Henry E. Anker, 165; Mrs. A. Morris, 139; "Billy" Gratz, 117; Miss J. Chambers, 110; Mrs. L. Jefferts, 102; Edgely Sewing Guild, 100.

Mrs. Pitzenka told of the many places the garments were distributed last year. A basket containing 52 layette items was donated by the Junior Travel Club. It was mentioned that eight young women aided Mrs. Frederick Kring in arranging the exhibit.

Silent prayer was offered in memory of Mrs. Griffith L. Williams, late treasurer of the Guild, and a floral offering in her memory had a place at the front of the room. Reports were given by the secretary, Mrs. Harry Pope, and the treasurer, Mrs. William O'Dea. Tea was served by members of a special committee.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. J. H. Queen
Pastor, Bethel A. M. E. Church

Eternal Father in heaven, bless us with eternal salvation. Endow us with the gift of fellowship. Savior of mankind, save our hearts from apathy and moral decay; save our spirits from faithlessness and bring us to a place of constant trust. Make salvation sure and redemption real despite the questionings of a doubting world. And as salvation comes to our lives may we shed its glories abroad. Wherever we come in contact with a seeking soul may the world see Jesus in us. Amen.

BRISTOL HIGH TEAM IS IDLE TOMORROW; TO PLAY THURSDAY

Bunnies Will Oppose Morrisville Eleven on Field Here

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Both Teams, Keen Rivals, Will Be Playing For League Honors

Bristol High football team will remain idle tomorrow afternoon. The Bunnies play their next game on Thanksgiving Day morning, meeting Morrisville High for the Lower Bucks County championship on the local field.

The only game in this vicinity will see the Pennsylvania School or the Deaf Play Morrisville at Morrisville at two o'clock. Bristol beat P. S. D., 16-0, last Saturday, so fans can compare the Thanksgiving Day opponents.

Bensalem High will travel to George School to meet the team representing that institution. The game will begin at 2:15 o'clock.

person having any ability at all.

Third, "Social." I would like to see medical research continue as it has in the past and also during this war. Many new things have been discovered in the medical world in the past years, and I think medicine is still in its infancy. In a recent issue of a magazine I read an article entitled "Banks of Human Spare Parts." In these banks parts of the human body are kept. These include cartilages, parts of the eye, bones of the arms and legs and many other parts. These will be used for people who have been in terrible accidents. These parts are kept preserved for a long period of time. One doctor kept some parts of the body for over a year and were said to be in good condition and still good for use. If these banks are as great as claimed to be, I would very much like to see them used in the post war world for people who are in a critical condition.

Housing in the post war world will be another great development. I read in a recent article that homes will be put up in about twenty minutes. To me this seems rather fast work, but if it can be done I would like to see it. It may be, by the time I get ready to have a home, all I'll have to do is to look in a catalogue, find the serial number of the home I would like to buy, order it, and in a short time a truck will back up to a vacant lot and put up my house.

I would like to see towns have centers for recreation. To have these places of recreation would mean a great deal to the people. Large industries will probably foster a number of these projects. These will be places where the people can go and do what they wish. They may have bowling, pool, basketball, baseball, pingpong, swimming, and many other activities. That is just the trouble with today, people have few places to go. If recreation centers were built it would also stop a lot of juvenile delinquency because these centers will be well supervised.

The second speech, delivered by Jack Stetson, follows:

Mr. President, members of the Rotary Club, and guests. I have not a great deal of time and thought on this topic and the meaning that I took from the title was that I should give my ideas of what I would like to see in the post-war world, not particularly what I think there will be.

Conditions of the postwar world may be divided into three fundamental divisions: Social, Economical, and Philosophical. To go into detail about each of these divisions would take a great deal of time. I will briefly tell my dreams of what I would like to see in a Postwar World.

In the social world, I would like to see great strides in the fields of aviation, education, and home mechanics.

In the air I dream of large and speedy transport that will carry mail, cargo and important people to every spot on this great globe of ours in record-breaking time, and I dream of helicopters, or the like to deliver mail, etc., on short hops such as from Bristol to Burlington to save the ever-so-frequent round-about way now used, as in the example it would save the trip from Bristol to Trenton and then down to Burlington. The mail in this case travels a distance of approximately twenty-five miles to get to a goal less than two miles away.

I do not think as some do that there will be helicopters and trim looking planes in place of automobiles, although I do believe there will be more privately owned planes than ever before.

In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post I read an article about a man that owned his own little plane and in taking a trip from New York to Mississippi, under average weather conditions

BY JOE ELBERSON

If the grouse were, they still are... hunted Pike County last Saturday for grouse and came home empty-handed. Either the birds were flushing wild or the howling winds prevented us from hearing them get up. Saw just three birds all day and the closest one was at least 75 yards ahead of us.

We worked the ridges and valleys, the swamps and pines, and the hemlocks and oaks, all without success.

Saw plenty of deer, as usual. Probably, when deer season arrives, the hunters will see plenty of grouse and very few deer.

Coon hunting... Joseph McIlvaine, Edgington, while hunting near by woods took four raccoons in one night recently.

Joe, who has two of the best coonhounds in this section, reports that raccoons are fairly plentiful. The average weight of the four he took the other evening was 13 pounds.

Some of the raccoon hunting fraternity claim, however, that the Game Commission started the season at too early a date. These hunters claim the pelts are not prime and that some of the animals being treed that on a recent hunting trip his dogs treed three coons, the mother and two that were not even half grown.

The strippers are moving... according to J. Leslie Kileoyne, Esq., member of Bucks County's legal fraternity, and an ardent salt water angler, the catches of striped bass along the New Jersey coast have been increasing recently. On a recent trip Mr. Kileoyne hooked into three nice ones while fishing the surf. He said several nice catches were made while he was fishing.

More on rabbit trapping... Last winter the Game Commission, through its field officers and the co-operation of Sportsmen's organizations and Boy Scout Troops, succeeded in live-trapping and removing 33,083 rabbits from areas where no hunting is permitted, such as city lots and parks, Victory garden plots, watersheds, institutional grounds, etc. The animals were released in open hunting territory where they provided the finest possible breeding stock.

Deputy Game Protectors, leaders of Scout groups and other youth groups and sportsmen were appointed as agents of the Game Commission to assist the Commission's depleted field staff with this work. A fine job was done last winter, even though rabbits had been reported scarce in some localities.

The Commission plans to continue its program on a much larger scale this winter, and if members of any organization are willing and are interested in undertaking a program of this kind in order to build rabbit trapped the county Game Protector will be glad to furnish all details.

You may know of Victory gardeners who experienced rabbit damage, or of parks and other protected areas where trapping should be done. If so, please give this information to your local Protector so that he may plan his campaign now to include every available section. The man to contact is County Game Protector Earl Carpenter, 41 Taylor avenue, Doylestown.

According to latest information the Commission doesn't plan to buy any rabbits for stocking purposes... the only rabbits that will be released will be those that are trapped this winter. So here is an opportunity for local sportsmen to help overcome the very spotty hunting that is found in this end of the County.

Perhaps, when the war is won, and the boys come back from the fighting fronts, the Game Commission may see fit to spend some of the almost two million dollars it has to buy more pheasants and rabbits for the men who hunt the woods and fields.

and the normal amount of red tape, it took longer and was more expensive than either a car or a transport airplane.

I would like to see in the field of education perhaps the greatest change of any. I think there should be larger, more modernistic schools with better athletic fields and gymnasiums so that the boys and girls can develop themselves and become stronger and more healthy people of the future. I believe that there should be heat-regulated or air-cooled class rooms to help keep the pupils as wide awake as possible. I know that when I am in a class where the windows are closed and it gets hot and stuffy I can hardly keep awake and as a result receive no profit from the class.

I would not like to see again, as there was found to be by the draft this time, people that can neither read nor write even their own name.

As part of a boy's training I think a year of either army or navy life would be a good thing. I do not think there should be a minimum age but should take them as they leave school.

Someone would naturally bring forth the argument that after a year in the army if a fellow wanted to go to college he would be older than the rest of his classmates but I do not think they would because everyone would have to spend a year in the service and they would all be nearly the same age. This would actually help them in their college career because they would

Will wages be cut to a minimum when the war is terminated? I believe wages will gradually decrease but I do not think they will reach rock bottom as they were about ten years ago, due to the unions and organizations of that type which have been established for the better relations between labor and management.

Another big problem in the economic reconstruction of the Post-war World is the one concerning the paying for the immense destruction caused by the bombing and fighting. Many people are of the opinion that the aggressor nations should stand the entire expense but I am of a contrary belief. I believe that each nation should stand its own expense. I do think that the starters of the war should pay some indemnities but not to an extent that they will be totally bankrupt since this would give rise to another false leader like Hitler who would make false promises of better things to come and as after the last war the stupid people would naturally follow him thinking that they have nothing, therefore, to lose.

This brings us to the Philosophical angle of the Postwar conditions. Facts prove that Hitler and his storm troopers took over during a period of depression and bankruptcy. If these aggressive nations are forced into bankruptcy it is quite likely that this will be repeated.

In the United States we too have our governmental operations to think about which was brought forth by Dewey and his so-called fight against the rise of communism. Although Roosevelt was elected I do not think and devoutly hope that communism will ever get a permanent foothold in the United States government. If communism gets a grip in America, which I am quite sure it will not, it would mean everyone would work for a common pool and collecting nothing but slight pay and necessities from the government. This would put the lazy men and the ambitious and progressive men on an equal basis and give no opportunities for advancement to the ambitious man.

These are the things I would like to see in a postwar world. I thank you.

business with him, Senator Glass, who has not been in his Senate seat for two years, never did personally confirm the statement and the only source which gave it out was the White House. Many of Mr. Glass' friends deplored this second-hand publicity. Some refused to believe it on the ground that it was totally out of character. Others explained it on the ground that he was a sick man. There still is considerable mystery about the whole incident.

—O—
HOWEVER, there was no mystery about the position of Mr. Glass' colleague, Senator Harry F. Byrd.

Here was one anti-New Deal, anti-fourth-term Democrat who neither trimmed, traded nor straddled in this campaign. He is one who came out of the campaign with his self-respect unimpaired. No one knowing the Virginia primary law, knowing Senator Byrd's position as the head of the Democratic organization in Virginia and knowing Senator Byrd personally expected him to come out in favor of the Republican candidate or to cast his vote for him. His situation in Virginia as the party leader, the party regulations and his party responsibility all precluded that. On the contrary, it was equally unthinkable that Senator Byrd, whose personal and political opinion of Mr. Roosevelt's policies, promises, philosophy, performances and friends has never been disguised, should shift himself by even the appearance of a fourth-term endorsement.

UNDER heavy fire from the New Dealish Richmond Times-Dispatch with editorials headed "Is Senator Byrd a Democrat?" Senator Byrd never yielded an inch. Bombarded with trick invitations to address them on the issues of the campaign, violently denounced by Mr. Hillman's PAC and the radical Roosevelt press in New York, Senator Byrd firmly declined. From start to finish he refused to make any statement favoring Mr. Roosevelt or to give even qualified endorsement to his fourth-term effort or to say to anyone how he intended to vote. This was equivalent to saying that he would not vote at all—because the Democratic leader in Virginia cannot vote the Republican ticket and this Democratic leader would not vote the Democratic ticket.

—O—

CONCERNING the attacks upon

Senator Byrd, the Northern Virginia Daily declared the real purpose was to split the Democratic party in Virginia by uniting and organizing disgruntled factions within the party with others which have recently acquired party affiliation in the hope of seizing control of the organization. "Just as the national Democratic party has been captured by the New Deal National Socialists," And the Charlotte Observer, speaking of the example of Senator Byrd in declining to be bullied, or cajoled into a hypocritical and insincere position, said: "He shines out like a bright star set in the heavens of a black night when silhouetted against the officeholders and office-seekers in other States, who loudly proclaim their faith in an Administration whose policies they are unable to hold on their political stomachs." It is fine to find a man in public life who cares more for his self-respect than for his political future. That is what stands Senator Byrd out in Virginia—and that is what stands him out in the Senate and the country.

CHILDREN'S TOYS CAN BE MADE AT HOME

Play Is Child's Work and His Toys Are His Tools

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN

Children's Toys From the Home Work Shop

Play is really a child's work and his toys are his tools. This "work" and these "tools" are just as important and valuable to the child as a father's or mother's to them. A child learns through his play. A baby tries to touch and taste and move everything in his sight. Later he child learns the difference in sizes, in textures, in weights and in sounds. He learns to use his muscles through various activities such as walking, crawling, pulling, pushing and climbing. When the child reaches the age of 3 or 4 he needs toys which will help him imitate the activities of grown-ups, such as keeping house, farming, building and other occupations.

Standards for Children's Toys

All play equipment must be durable and sturdy to stand the wear and tear as a child or group of children play with it. Durable toys which will stand repairs and a new coat of paint can be used over long periods of time.

Toys and play equipment should be washable or cleanable.

Always consider safety. Avoid sharp corners and edges, rough surfaces, fragile materials and poor paint.

Types of Play Materials

Many times children receive much more pleasure from crude toys than they do from more expensive ones. Toys which can be put to many uses are valuable for children as they help to develop the child's creative abilities.

Children need various types of play materials. They need toys to promote vigorous activity, other or less vigorous activity and such quiet play materials as can be manipulated to create ideas according to their own individual desires.

Directions for Making Toys or Building

Box Blocks

Wooden cigar boxes, cheese boxes, chalk boxes, dried fruit boxes or similar boxes that are not too large may be made into excellent building blocks. Fasten the covers firmly either with small brads or with plastic wood. Give the boxes a good coat of enamel in bright colors. These will be easy to clean.

Nested Cans

Nested cans provide cylinders for building. Use 4 or 5 cans of nearly the same height but of different diameters. Open cans with an opener which leaves smooth edges turned down. Wash them thoroughly, removing labels. Paint different bright colors as red, green, blue and yellow. If desired, paste simple pictures out from magazines on the cans and shellac over these with a clear shellac.

For Imitative Play—

Doll Cradle

A grape basket may be made into a cradle by screwing on rockers or a bassinet may be made if small wheels on wooden axle are available. Remove the handle from the basket. Wooden coat hangers may be used for rockers. If a cradle is desired. Take the coat hanger and remove the metal hook. Cut the hanger the desired size in relation to the size of the basket. Fasten the rockers to the basket with screws clinching them so there are no sharp edges protruding. Paint the basket with a light colored enamel or cover with a dainty print with a flounce of the same on elastic. If a canopy is desired, this may be made of heavy cardboard, wire or bamboo splints. It can be covered with the same covering as used on the cradle.

Doll Carriage

Use the jumbo size grape basket. Mount it on wooden axles to which wooden wheels have been attached. Make the hood in the same manner as described in the cradle. The handle may be made from thin pieces of wood such as yardsticks or window shade sticks and the handle rest may be made from a rounded piece of wood. Make holes about 1 inch from the top end of the handle to fit the rounded piece and insert. It should fit snugly. Paint the carriage and make a pad for the inside of it from a dainty chintz or similar material. Attach handles with screws near the front wheels of the carriage.

Wagon

Use a wooden box such as dried fruit is packed in. If a lathe is available, have wheels which are about 4 inches in diameter, turned. Mount on an axle about 10 inches in length, depending upon the width of the wagon. Use a metal shield, such as is used in plastering, in the center of the wheel where the screw passes through the wheel to the axle. Use a piece of wood $\frac{3}{4}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ x 20 inches long for the handle. Taper the end which the child grasps to $\frac{1}{2}$ inch on a side. Bore a small hole $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches from the end of the handle and insert a small rounded 3-inch peg. Attach handle to wagon with a small hinge, tapering the end so that it will fit flat to the end of the wagon.

Trains

Very satisfactory trains of cars may be made by mounting cheese boxes (5 lb. size), on wheels and axles. Wheels may be made of wooden button molds or 2-inch wheels may be cut from 3-ply wood. These are screwed to wooden axles $\frac{3}{4}$ x $\frac{3}{4}$ x 37 $\frac{1}{2}$ in size. Doors may be cut in the sides of some boxes and the top nailed on the box for a box car. Other boxes may have the tops left off forming open cars. Flat cars may be made by mounting a board on axles and wheels. The axles for the cars are placed about 2 inches from the ends of the cars. Screw hooks and screw eyes are attached in opposite ends, so that a number of cars may be fastened together.

For the engine, use a cheese box and cut off one-third of its height from the four sides. Remove one end of the box and make a diagonal cut about 3 inches in length. When the end is nailed in place this will form the cow catcher of the engine. A long round tin can such as a baking powder can will form the boiler of the engine. Spools of different shapes and sizes represent the smokestack, bell etc., of the engine. Screw the spools in place on the side of the can, using small wooden blocks on the inside of the can to make the screws secure. Use a screw which will be long enough to go through the spool and fasten to the block inside. Fasten the can to the top of the cheese box, using blocks of wood inside the can to hold it secure. Nail this in place on the foundation. Fasten a small spool to the cover of the can to represent headlight in the same manner as already mentioned and place on can.

For the cab on the engine use an end portion of a cheese box about 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length. The top of the cab should extend out beyond the body so may be cut about 2 inches in length. Fasten cab to foundation. Nail wheels and axles into place. One set of wheels should be placed $\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the cab end of the engine, the second set 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the first and the third set 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the front of the engine. Children's Toys Can Be Made At Home

Cow Catcher—A screw eye in the middle of cow catcher through which a cord can be attached so that the engine may be drawn. Place a screw hook in the middle of the opposite end to attach to the coal car.

To make the coal car, cut a cheese box in half crosswise. Fit a piece of wood 2 inches high into the open end and nail in place. Round off edges above this piece and mount on axles placing axles 5/8 inch from ends. Place screw hook and screw eye in the coal car to attach it to the engine and cars.

Paint the engine and coal car black. The other cars may be painted in different colors.

Stick Horse—For the stick horse, cut a broomstick about 32 inches long. Paint it a yellow or rich brown color. Other colors may be used. For the head use a man's sock. Color or the fact that it is darned makes little difference. Stuff as full as possible with excelsior, cotton, corn husks or other material. The broomstick must be pushed well up through the excelsior and the sock opening tacked to it. If thumbs or fingers of wornout gloves are available they may be stuffed and sewed in place for ears. Sew buttons on for eyes, use strips of leather or shoe strings for bridle and lines. Outline nostrils and teeth using white or black darning or embroidery floss.

Tug Boat—1 piece of wood 3/4" x 6 1/4" x 1 1/4" (base)*
1 piece of wood 3/4" x 3 1/2" x 7/8" (cabin)
1 piece of wood 1 1/2" x 3 1/2" x 7/8" (cabin)
(Use wood having lightest possible weight)
3 empty spools.

Saw ends of base and cabin to shape and nail the cabin to the base. Trim one end from the spools and screw them to the top of the cabin to represent smoke stacks. Insert a screw eye in end of base. Sandpaper all edges so they will be very smooth. Apply two coats of enamel, allowing the first coat to dry thoroughly, before the second is applied. Trim base and smoke stacks with a contrasting color.

Drum—Coffee or cracker can
Adhesive tape
String
2 Clothes pins

Punch a hole in the middle of the lid and one in the bottom of the can and hammer down the rough edges inside. Thread a strong string through the holes and tie with a strong knot. Fasten the lid on with adhesive tape. The can may be given a coat of bright colored enamel. Two clothes pins will serve as drum sticks.

This drum will also make an excellent pull toy for the 1-2 year old child. Place a few pebbles in the can before fastening the lid with the tape. Place a spool in the middle of the string for a good hand hold.

For Quiet Play—Homemade Clay
Mix 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup salt and 1 tablespoon powdered alum, with enough water to hold it together (about 1 1/3 cup). Color with vegetable dye, mercurchrome or bluing. Children enjoy rolling this material and modeling it into original forms. When not in use, keep in a covered container. As children play with the clay, the surface dries from exposure to air. A little additional water kneaded into the clay will keep it in good condition.

Colored Beads
Mix 7 cup flour and 1/2 cup salt with enough water to make a thick dough. Color with vegetable dyes, mercurchrome or bluing. Divide into small pieces, roll into beads and make a hole in the center of each with a nail. Let dry and string on tape or string.

For the Infant—

The Spool Doll
Use spools of different sizes and a discarded silk stocking. For the body of the doll use a large spool such as a ribbon, tape or carpet thread spool. Use 3 medium sized and 2 spools such as No. 70 for the arms. Small darning cotton spools form the hands and feet. Use a large spool for the head. Enamel the spools in different colors being sure to use an enamel which will not come off or fade should the toy be put in the mouth.

Cut the foot from an old silk stocking. Silk stockings are better than cotton as they are elastic enough to make a doll which is loose-jointed and the child can shake. Pull the leg of the stocking through the large spool leaving an equal amount above and below. Cut the lower part of the stocking in two and tie a knot in each part next to the spool. Thread 3 medium sized spools and a small darning cotton spool on each. Tie knots in the end of each piece of stocking and make secure with two or three stitches. Divide the upper part of the stocking into three parts and tie a knot in each part next to the body. Place 2 spools for the arm and a small darning cotton spool for the hand on two pieces. Tie a knot at the end and sew with 2 or 3 stitches. Place a larger spool on the third strip to represent the head. A face may be drawn on one or both sides of the head. A small darning cotton spool may represent a hat. Tie a knot and stitch securely. The top of the stocking will form the top of the toy.

Unpainted spools may be strung on white cotton tape in the same way as on the stocking. This will enable them to be boiled and cleaned easily.

MAKE MOST OF THE WILD GAME WHILE IT IS AVAILABLE

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham (Home Economics Representative)

Don't waste a bit of game brought home this fall in Bucks County. Among the reasons for this appeal are the hunter wants all of the game used, you as a homemaker dislike wasting food, and game is a saving in cost and red points.

It is advisable to use or sharp-freeze most of the game as soon as possible. Last year a large amount of deer meat spoiled. Some families had left it in an outside shed where it remained frozen, then there were three days of unusually warm weather and the venison spoiled.

It is up to the homemaker to make wild game a treat for the entire family, and that means special attention to cooking. Very often game needs longer cooking than other kinds of meat. Cooking in a covered pan usually is best for game, and because most game meat is very lean, fat should be added. Otherwise most of the rules for cooking poultry and meat hold for game.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission rules that all small game must be disposed of within 30 days and all big game within 60 days after close of season. Thus it is against the law to can any game. It is permissible to freeze it, but it must be used within the 60-day limit.

USE NAZI VEHICLES
AIR SERVICE COMMAND, England — (INS) — Air Service Command mechanics, working on landing strips behind the lines in France, are using German vehicles to fill their transportation needs. It was announced today. Captured vehicles are collected in a "pool," then issued with U. S. Army serial numbers to various units behind the lines, thereby releasing standard American trucks for duty in the front line sectors.

BRITAIN GETS READY FOR RECONVERSION

1,000 State-Built Factories To Be Turned Over To Private Industry

ON LONG-LEASE BASIS

By Howard Barry
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Nov. 17—Britain is gearing itself to revert to post-war industrial production on a large scale.

The first step has been taken by the government, which has decided that more than 1,000 surplus state-built and owned factories, are to be turned over to British manufacturers for peace-time industrial purposes.

Each of the factories has 10,000 square feet of floor space or more, and are valued at many millions of dollars.

They will be let to selected contractors for a period of 10 years, with an option to the tenants at the end of that period for further long-term leases.

The initial rent under the 10-year lease will be based on the rental value in the open market on the 1939 value.

To prevent a repetition of the chaos which followed the disposal of government-built factories after World War I, the government has decided that the factories will be leased only to applicants in accordance with the national interest.

Leasing of the factories will be made on the following considerations:

1. The establishment of a balanced distribution of industry to maintain employment in the old "depressed" areas like South Wales and Durham.

2. Re-establishment and expansion of export trade.

3. Maintenance of war potential.

4. Requirements of town and country planning.

5. Ability of applicants to make efficient use of the factories with the minimum of reconstruction.

Firms that have been blitzed or requisitioned will have special consideration on grounds of equity.

After the last war governmental factories were sold by competitive tender which led to grave abuses and maldistribution of industry.

It is hoped by the new method of allocating space in advance to avoid the old errors and to ensure as far as possible that industries such as electrical goods, radio equipment, plastics, domestic appliances and clocks and watches will be established and maintained in places like Merthyr, Wales, where there was 86 per cent unemployment at the height of the depression.

Sir Philip Watter, British Controller-General of Factories and Storage Space, who has charge of the scheme, is of the opinion that there will be many more applicants than factories.

"Many hundreds of modern production plants have been built," said Sir Philip. "Some are specialized, but the majority can readily be turned over to peace-time requirements."

Much of the factory space will be allocated before the war in Europe is over, but it is not expected that they will be taken over until hostilities have ended. By allocating the factories now, however, British business men will be able to plan ahead for the switch over to peace-time production.

ROSEMONT — (INS) — Among other things, the Japs lost a $5000 bequest by warring against the United States. Mrs. Leah G. Johnson willed the money to Tsuda College in Tokyo but revoked it following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

EAST NORRITON TOWNSHIP — (INS) — Harry Knoeller suspected foul play in the mysterious comings and goings of his 50 young chick-ens, but he couldn't put his finger on it. They disappeared October 28 for five days then reappeared suddenly on their old roosts.

McKEESPORT — (INS) — Pvt. James Clark, 14, was bitter about having to readjust himself to civilian life after nearly a year's service in the paratroops. "It all had to happen just as I was about to go overseas," protested the youth, who was discharged following a letter from his grandmother.

JOHNSTOWN — (INS) — Police court fines were on the upward trend in Johnstown. Collections for the first nine months of 1944 totalled $17,030 compared with $11,309 for the same period last year.

HARRISBURG — (INS) — Cuts and bruises were the only injuries suffered by Darrah Oves, city road roller operator, when the brakes on his 10-ton machine failed to hold while traveling down a steep hill and the vehicle sped through a busy intersection and overturned.

EXCISE TAX AIDS MANAGEMENT OF WILDLIFE MEANS

First Appropriation Became
Effective on July 1st,
1938

$10,900,000 AVAILABLE

Pennsylvania's Apportionment
During Seven Years
Totalled $507,163.92

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16 — The Federal Government's excise tax on sporting firearms and ammunition imposed at 10% in 1932 and increased to 11% in 1940, revenues from which normally amount to about three million dollars a year, is providing material aid in the management of Pennsylvania's wildlife resources, according to W. Gard Conklin, Chief of the Division of Lands of the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

Sportsmen of the United States, believing these revenues should be used for their benefit, finally persuaded Congress in 1937 to earmark the income for wildlife restoration purposes in all the States adopting enabling legislation, subject to annual appropriations by Congress.

The first appropriation became effective July 1, 1938. During the seven year period to date, a total of $10,900,000 has been made available to the Fish and Wildlife Service of the United States Department of the Interior for apportionment to State game departments. That Service, however, is permitted to retain not to exceed 10% for management of the program. In other words, about 90% of the $10,900,000 was made available to the respective States for game restoration purposes approved by the Fish and Wildlife Service. For approved projects, the Federal Government pays 75% of the costs and the State concerned the other 25%.

Pennsylvania's apportionment during the seven year period amounted to $507,163.92, of which approximately 80% was allocated for land acquisition projects, and the most of the remainder for research studies and land management projects.

Game research projects were designed to obtain scientific data to assist in managing intelligently the Commonwealth's wildlife for recreational purposes. Seven such projects were approved, mainly for field studies of our native wildlife problems, and have already made available much information of definite value to sportsmen and the Game Commission.

Land Management projects provided for studies of forest wildlife problems including forest growth cutting operations, forest fires and controlled burnings to determine the ultimate effect on game food and cover.

None of the research and management projects have been completed because the experts who were making the studies are now serving in the armed forces. It is expected, however, that the various projects will be revived after the war and pursued to completion.

Land acquisition projects provided for the purchase of 169 tracts of land totalling 123,669 acres distributed throughout the State. Many of the tracts were small additions to State Game Lands previously acquired for the Commission, although a few included several thousand acres to form the nucleus of new unit blocks of State Game Lands. Title is now vested in the Commonwealth for use of the Game Commission for about 85% of the acreage included in approved projects.

The Commission's land purchase program is continuing, although on a greatly reduced scale during the war. Funds are available for making additional purchases, but no special efforts are being exerted to secure options from land owners due to a lack of manpower. Owners desiring to offer their lands should contact local game protectors or the Division of Lands of the Game Commission at Harrisburg.
